

Plastic surgery Eyelid surgery (Blepharoplasty)

Description:

Overlapping eye lids and bags do not look esthetically well on anybody's face. At the bottom and top lids there is sooner or later skin excess developed that can reach up to the lashes and practically hide the lid beneath. The appearance of swollen pouch often develops on the lower ones.

Technologies:

Depending on the scope the action eyelid surgeries will be provided by the latest methods – either by laser assisted operation or in a classical way – scalpel.

«Laser» operation of the upper eyelids is currently considered to be one of the most frequently provided operations. It gained its popularity among patients by its painlessness, speed and minimal post-surgery complications like swelling and bruises.

The cut of the laser scalpel on the upper lid goes along the face line of the lid so within a short time it is not visible. At the bottom lid the cut goes immediately under the lashed line so it is also not apparent.

«Laser» operation of the bottom lids is also done in a «hidden way», without any visible surgical wound because the operation access is gained through the inner side of the lid.
